

REPRESSION IN FRANCE.
Paris has again been disturbed by an insurrection in Paris, which threatened to upset the throne. It broke out on Sunday evening 12th May, and the first day nine hours in seige. The first assault was led by 300 persons dressed in black coats and leather caps who presented themselves at a magazine of arms in the 'Berg d'Albe'. The entrance to the magazine was soon forced, and 150 fowling pieces were sent out. The Paris Messenger says that having effected their immediate purpose these individuals quitted the house and retired towards the quays on the banks of the river, having reached which they immediately separated into several divisions, which went in different ways, one division stepped towards the Palace of Justice, and the other to the palace d'Orléans, and the third remaining upon the three points of view, and being established at the Hotel de Ville. The insurrection, being taken by surprise at this point of time, and the insurrection, which had been prepared for, was of a popular opinion, and which had been announced by many tumultuous cries, and was completely overpowered and disarmed. The divisions which had seized the posts of the Palace of Justice and the Place du Carroussel, being more numerous than the forces which marched to oppose the Prefect of Police, who, however, they were overpowered, and the gates being shut and the Municipal Guard being on the alert, having been informed by some who were witnesses of the proceedings at the Hotel de Ville, and the Hotel de Ville, where they joined their comrades, were in possession of that post, and the other masters of the place, were prevented from effecting the erection of barricades, which one, composed of two companies, was already placed on the Quay of the Pont Neuf. These proceedings, being the result of a few minutes, resulted in the appearance of the insurgents, but such was the promptness with which orders were given and executed by the Municipal and National Guards, that the insurrection was completely quelled before the following day, although with a serious loss of life and property. — Nashville Whig.

From the Western World.
MEMPHIS PRICES CURRENT.
...	$10 00	12 00
(pr bl.)	07 00	08 00
...	07 a	8 00
(pr lb.)	10 a	12 00
...	9 00 a	10 00
...	14 50	17 00
(pr gal.)	50 a	55
...	50 a	55
(pr bush.)	75 a	1 00
...	75 a	00 75
allum. (pr sack)	3 75 a	00 00
spool, blown,	4 00 a	4 25
spenn. (pr lb)	50 a	55
ow, mould,	18 a	28
(pr lb.)	10 a	18
ow, assorted sizes,	20 a	22
the Ky.,	26 a	22
...	22 a	22
ope, Ky.,	11 a	11
...	9 a	16
...	9 a	10
...	9 a	10
(pr lb.)	5 a	10
...	10 00 a	18 00

The heavy rains, which have fallen in the more northern latitudes, will probably produce another elevation of waters shortly. In the meanwhile, the output of up-country produce, have not been much, whilst current prices are not maintained.

CHINA.—We have noticed some small rise in previous stocks during the week, and continued steady and considerable.

INDIA, in bulk is scarce—sales 7 to 8 1-2 per cent. R. is rather dull at our quotations and cannot be cashed at near these rates. The demand is steady and prices are maintained.

Springs, Marshall County, Mississippi.
Holly Springs, Jan. 18, 1932. -1-11